LANGUAGE TESTS

Preparation courses for the examination for languages for specific purposes – medicine

Without an examination for languages for specific purposes, no job! For some time, the medical association of the Federal states of Germany “Bundesrepublik Deutschland” insists on the so called, Fachsprachenprüfung (Examination for languages for specific purposes). This examination serves to declare/to assess the technical and linguistic competence of the foreign physicians. The exam takes one hour and costs between 300,-€ – 500,-€. Although the procedure of examinations differs slightly between the Federal states of Germany “Bundesrepublik Deutschland”, the following procedure is valid

- detailed anamnesis (20 minutes)
- fill out anamnesis questionnaire or a short doctors record (20 minutes)
- doctor to doctor consultation. Presentation of the patient with interposed question of the examiner (20 minutes).

In a four-week preparatory course for the exam, we simulate up to 40 cases and discuss them in detail. The participants will learn questioning techniques, structuring of the notes, coherent dialog as well as professional presentation. Added to this is the training of the terminology (Latin/German – German/Latin) in the group. Furthermore, contemporary medical-academic texts are written. Where necessary we can clarify and correct grammatical deficits. The aim of this crash course is to acquire competence in special language usage, to pass the exam convincingly and with confidence. As a condition for this preparatory course you should have at least B2 level.
